

GLOBAL STUDIES

What can I do with this major?

AREAS	EMPLOYERS	STRATEGIES
INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS Management Human resources Labor relations Banking and finance Economics International development Real estate Sales Marketing and advertising Product management Supply chain management Healthcare administration Agricultural economics Manufacturing Engineering/Computer and software services Importing/Exporting Customer service Consulting	International companies: Foreign firms operating in the U.S. U.S. firms operating in foreign countries Domestic and foreign corporations Multinational service firms Global small and medium enterprises Domestic and foreign financial institutions International marketing firms International real estate firms International trade firms Contracting and consulting firms Logistics firms Manufacturers Retail stores Environmental firms Sports organizations	Earn an economics or business minor or take business related courses. Consider an MBA for advancement opportunities Become fluent in at least one additional language. Obtain cross-cultural experience by studying abroad. Seek an international internship, even if unpaid. Learn about laws and policies regulating international trade. Acquire supervisory skills and experience by taking leadership roles in student organizations. Learn about geography and international travel regulations. Sharpen your communication skills. Interact with the international student population on campus. Stay abreast of international news, especially political and economic developments. Research firms with international interests. Target larger firms that may be more likely to employ contracting services. Develop your skills domestically and build a network of contacts. Understand that many companies send more seasoned employees to work abroad. Be prepared to start working in the US for a firm with an overseas presence.
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS Diplomacy Peacekeeping Foreign affairs Program administration Community development Economic development Resource development Public-private partnerships Governance	United Nations Non-governmental organizations Relief agencies Religious organizations Educational institutions Consulting firms Research institutes Foundations Defense contractors	Become fluent in a second or third language. Study, volunteer, or work internationally. Seek as many experiences abroad as possible. Complete an internship specifically with a NGO, the US government, or an international government. Study world governments, economics, and religions. Be able to demonstrate your depth of dedication, willingness to adapt, and coping mechanisms to combat stress and difficult situations.

AREAS	EMPLOYERS	STRATEGIES
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CONTINUED Policy making and analysis Legislative services Political advising Public sector reform Poverty-reduction strategy Ethics and anti-corruption Human rights	Legislative officials Federal government: Department of State Department of Agriculture Department of Commerce Department of Defense:Armed Services US Agency for International Development National Security Council National Security Agency	Develop skills in the areas of organizing groups, efficiency, and the ability to calm people. Seek cultural experiences on campus and get involved with international students. Learn about geography and international travel regulations. Stay abreast of international news and politics. Sharpen your intercultural communication skills. Learn to see all sides of a problem, including economic, social, political, and environmental. Earn a relevant graduate degree such as international diplomacy, international relations, or law. Research government hiring procedures and seek assistance from your campus career center.
ADVOCACY AND NONPROFIT Human services provision Public health Disaster/Disease relief Economic development Community development HIV/AIDS work Policy development Program administration Program evaluation Volunteer coordination	Non-governmental organizations Private voluntary organizations Nonprofit organizations Humanitarian services Religious organizations Relief agencies United Nations: World Health Organization UNICEF Economic and Social Council Federal government: Peace Corps US Agency for International Development National Security Council	Become fluent in a second or third language. Work or study abroad to gain international/intercultural competency and practical experience. Complete internships or fellowships to gain experience working with social issues of interest. Participate in an international service learning experience or go on mission trips. Develop excellent research, writing, communication, and organizational skills. Explore non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in the US. Research organizations' structures, functions, and missions to find a good fit. Volunteer at relevant social service agencies to gain experience and demonstrate interest. Work with or assist immigrants or refugees in the local community. Gain experience with intercultural communication and an appreciation for diversity. Learn about international humanitarian law. Demonstrate strong analytical and management skills. Research government hiring procedures and seek assistance from your campus career center. Consider earning a graduate degree in social work, public administration, or related fields.

AREAS	EMPLOYERS	STRATEGIES
LANGUAGE SERVICES/EDUCATION Teaching Curriculum development Tutoring Translating/Interpreting Research Writing Library science Higher education administration: International student support services International houses or cultural centers Student affairs Study abroad programming	International schools Overseas dependents' schools English language institutes Professional language schools Non-governmental organizations Religious organizations Colleges and universities Third-party study abroad providers Federal government agencies	Gain practical domestic teaching experience and the necessary training or certificate to teach abroad. Teacher training should include supervised classroom experience. Minor or double major in another subject that you could also teach. Research certification options for teaching English (TESOL, CELTA, CELTC, TEFL). Obtain certificates from schools whose graduates are hired in the international marketplace. Consider obtaining intensive TESL (Teaching English as a Second Language) training. Volunteer to tutor children and adults in English. Learn basic structures of other languages to help understand how languages work. Sharpen intercultural competency, sensitivity, and tolerance through experiences working within diverse environments. Develop superior written and oral communication skills in the English language including proper sentence structure and comprehensive vocabulary. Notify local hospitals, schools, and chambers of commerce of your availability to translate or interpret for international visitors. Get involved with student leadership experiences on campus. Look for positions in developing nations or Asian countries. Teaching positions in Europe are very competitive. Earn a master's degree in College Student Affairs to work with study abroad programs or with international student services.

AREAS

EMPLOYERS

STRATEGIES

COMMUNICATIONS

Foreign news correspondence
International broadcasting
Reporting
Editorial/Column writing
Investigative journalism
Research
Photography
Freelance work

Foreign news agencies
Television networks
Large circulation newspapers
Wire services
Trade newspapers
Online publishers
Labor unions
Academic journals
International newspapers
Magazines
Websites
Self-employed

Earn a minor or supplement curriculum with communication courses (e.g., journalism, advertising and broadcasting).
Gain experience with campus newspaper or media.
Obtain a summer job or internship with a newspaper or other media source.
Research international media firms.
Demonstrate curiosity, high energy level, ability to produce under pressure, and withstand criticism.
Develop excellent grammar and writing skills.
Create a portfolio of work samples, especially those that have been published, or demonstrate multimedia work on a website or electronic portfolio.
Travel or study abroad.
Learn a second language.
Build a network of professional contacts by getting involved in relevant professional associations.

INTERNATIONAL PUBLIC LAW

Economic law
Trade and investment law
Commercial arbitration
Criminal law
Refugee law
Human rights law
Environmental law
Humanitarian law

Federal government:
Department of Defense
Department of State
Department of Commerce
Environmental Protection Agency
Law firms with an international practice
Overseas law firms
Corporations
Non-governmental organizations (NGOs) (e.g., Amnesty International, Human Rights First)
Intergovernmental Organizations (IGSs) (e.g., United Nations (UN), North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO))
Consulting firms

Develop strong research skills and attention to detail.
Participate in debate teams to hone communication skills.
Gain practical experience through an internship, part-time, or summer work in a law firm.
Shadow an attorney to learn more about the field and various specialties.
Get involved in pre-law organizations.
Participate in programs such as Model UN or Mock Trial.
Plan to attend law school and earn a law degree (JD).
Maintain a high grade point average and secure strong faculty recommendations.
Prepare for the LSAT (Law School Admission Test).
Research law schools to find those that offer courses in international public law and have a good reputation.
Gain international experience through internships or summer programs while in law school.
Plan to gain several years of experience before starting an international law career, as this field is very competitive.

AREAS	EMPLOYERS	STRATEGIES
TRAVEL AND TOURISM International airline services Booking and reservations Travel services/Guidance Ecotourism Convention and visitors' bureaus Transportation Hospitality Restaurant/Food service Customer/Guest services Marketing management	Tour and excursion compaines Travel agencies Lodging: hotels/motels, resorts, timeshares, hostels, residential accommodations management Property management compaines Restaurants/Food service providers Airlines/Airports Cruise lines Car rental agencies Convention centers Chambers of commerce Amusement centers, theme parks, and attractions US Military Morale, Welfare and Recreation programs	Supplement coursework or earn a minor in hotel, restaurant, and tourism administration or recreation and tourism management. Gain experience through an internship, part-time, or summer work in a hotel, restaurant, or area of interest. Work or study abroad to gain international/intercul tural competency. Learn about international travel and working regulations. Develop office management and technology skills. Maintain a travel blog to document travels and experiences. Show attention to detail. Build a strong foundation in customer service. Learn to communicate effectively with a wide variety of people and to work well in teams. Become fluent in another language. Understand that employees in this industry typically work long hours including nights, weekends, and holidays. Prepare to work "from the bottom up" in order to gain experience and relocate for promotions.

GENERAL INFORMATION

- Develop linguistic skills. Become fluent in a second and third language. Commit to continuous study to maintain and develop fluency.
- Demonstrate intercultural skills competency, sensitivity, humility, and tolerance.
- Gain experience communicating with people from other cultures. Seek opportunites to interact with international students on campus or in your community.
- Study abroad, work abroad, or travel to a foreign country while in school to develop language skills and intercultural competency.
- Develop a good understanding of etiquette and business practices in the countries you're hoping to work in.
- Look for temporary or volunteer positions abroad.
- Obtain daily news from target city to determine international and national news, business features, real estate markets, and community calendars.
- Get your foot in the door through domestic positions because many international employers promote current employees to international positions.
- Develop traits such as creativity, initiative, tenacity, flexibility, patience, a willingness to take risks, an adventurous spirit, and a sense of humor.
- In general, international positions are competitive and difficult to obtain. Be proactive in developing the skills and experiences international employers seek.
- Recognize that it takes time to develop a set of skills and experiences that will prepare you for an oversaeas job.
- Learn about international travel regulations including the specific visa requirements for the country you're traveling to and the jobs you'll be working in.